At Murdoch University, we are building a brighter future, together.

Our accessible education and progressive research are contributing solutions to some of society's biggest challenges, and we are proud of our inclusive, caring community in which everyone can realise their potential.

With more than 25,000 students from 90 countries, Murdoch is educating a new generation of creative and adaptable thinkers, and we are leaders in providing more pathways into education for more people.

Our academic staff work hard to equip our students with the skills and attributes so desired in a changing world, including adaptability, fresh perspectives, and a social conscience.

As a result, our 100,00 strong alumni community can be found all over the world, applying their specialist skills and influencing their communities for the better.

With your own graduation, we welcome you to Murdoch's alumni community.

CHANCELLOR'S MESSAGE

It is my great pleasure to congratulate you on the successful culmination of your course of study with Murdoch University.

Your degree equips you with the skills you need for an exciting career in your chosen field, along with the capacity for creativity, curiosity and critical thinking that are the foundation stones of a rich, rewarding life.

I know from personal experience the power of a Murdoch education. Many years ago, I was able to enrol by correspondence as a mature-aged student, the mother of three young children. After achieving my degree, I pursued a varied and exciting career in public life – one that led to my eventual appointment as Chancellor of Murdoch University!

I am therefore supremely confident that the knowledge and values you have learned as part of your Murdoch experience will give you the tools to understand our world and bring about change for the better.

The privilege of a university education should compel you to not only seek out a wonderful career, but to use your skills to give back to society, to make your mark, to truly make the world a better place.

As a valued Murdoch alumnus, I also hope that your graduation will not be the end of your Murdoch experience – and that you remain connected to your alma mater through the many professional and personal rewards offered by our Office of Alumni and Philanthropy. Graduates of Murdoch University, I congratulate you on your accomplishments and wish you continued success as you embark on the next exciting stage of your life's journey.

Yours sincerely,

Gail McGowan PSM
Chancellor

CHARGE TO GRADUATES

Graduates, it is my great honour to welcome you to the fellowship of educated people.

The award of a university degree carries many privileges but like all privileges it also carries responsibilities. As graduates of Murdoch University, I exhort you to use what you have learnt for your own betterment and for the benefit of the community.

I encourage you to use the skills and knowledge you have acquired with rigour and integrity and to commit yourselves to a program of life-long learning and discovery. I invite you to remember the lessons Murdoch has taught you about the worth of others, particularly those who have not had the opportunities that you have had.

At all times you should strive to set high goals and to continue the hard work that has brought you so far.

And finally, in all you do, I charge you to be deserving of the good name of Murdoch University.

THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION

The ceremony commences with the entrance of the academic procession where university dignitaries walk to the stage wearing traditional academic dress.

The procession consists of members of Murdoch's academic community with the highest ranking officials, the Chancellor, and Vice Chancellor and President following at the end.

The procession can also include representatives of other universities and dignitaries of local, state and national governments.

The Mace

The mace was originally a heavy club, often spiked, used in medieval warfare as a defensive weapon.

The term 'Chancellor' comes from the Latin 'cancellarius' meaning a gate-keeper. In other words, the Chancellor was the first line of defence when a castle or a city was attacked or besieged, and the mace was his formidably useful weapon.

Chancellors have retained the mace as their symbol of office and as a reminder that their function is to defend the University against influences hostile to their wellbeing. At important ceremonies the mace is carried before the Chancellor by a mace-bearer.

The Murdoch University mace was made by Simon Parsons, a Western Australian craftsman, using bush timber collected with respect to ecological good practice. The shaft is tuart and marri, with facings of jarrah, and the stand is jarrah. The mace was a gift from former Chancellor, the late Emeritus Professor Geoffrey Bolton AO, CitWA and Mrs Carol Bolton.

ACADEMIC DRESS

A photograph of two graduates in red gowns and black caps embracing. The graduate on the right is wearing red-rimmed glasses and has a joyful expression. The background is a blurred outdoor setting, likely a campus.

The gowns worn today have their origins in the lay costumes of the early Middle Ages.

Education was the preserve of monasteries until the 12th century, when universities were established in Bologna and Paris, both cathedral cities.

The Masters and students were initially clerks or members of the clergy below the rank of priest. They dressed in a gown, hood and cap, as did their secular contemporaries, while the Doctors and Masters of Theology, the priests, wore a full cape. It was not until the late 14th century, however, that universities began to set rules and requirements for formal academic dress.

Traditionally, university gowns are made from silk. Today, university gowns are manufactured in synthetics and other substitutes, but silk is still used in some facings and sleeve linings. The hoods, which grew out of the practical all-weather covering, have now diversified in cut and linings to indicate various degrees and universities.

The colours of academic dress at universities are now fully codified and usually refer to a graduate's academic discipline or School. Doctors of Science, Literature and Veterinary Science, for example, wear scarlet festal gowns with facings and sleeve linings of green silk for the Degree of Doctor of Science, royal blue for the Degree of Doctor of Literature, purple for the Degree of Doctor of Veterinary Science, and white for Doctor of the University.

Recycling of Spent Cylindrical Lithium-ion Batteries - Hydrometallurgy Approach with Pre-treatment

This thesis reports new technology for the recycling of cylindrical lithium-ion batteries (LiBs) to support closed-loop LiB production. Novel findings include a safe processing solution for collection and discharging of spent batteries, an alternative process for mineral liberation using semi-autogenous attrition, and hydrometallurgical process for extraction of the valuable elements using environmentally benign reagents. The outcome a novel, safe and green integrated technology for recycling LiBs, suitable for practical application.

Murdoch University Alumni

As a graduate of Murdoch University, we welcome you to the Murdoch alumni family - a growing international community of over 100,000 alumni.

If you are looking to continue your education and embark on lifelong learning, Murdoch can offer you up to 25% off the cost of postgraduate courses. Find out more on our website:

<https://www.murdoch.edu.au/study/scholarship/alumni-25-fee-tuition-discount>

There are many opportunities to be an active and engaged Murdoch alumnus through activities such as joining your local alumni chapter/network, or a discipline specific network, mentoring current students, volunteering on University Boards and Committees or at Murdoch events.

After more than 49 years as a leading educational institution, Murdoch University has a wealth of incredible graduates. From leaders in politics, business and research, to alumni working for the environment, or on the coalface of community development, our graduates are making a difference across the globe.

With many local, national and international events and reunions held every year, our e-newsletter Echoes, and the alumni magazine Murmur, there are many reasons to stay connected with Murdoch University.

For full details of all the benefits and services available to you as a Murdoch alumnus, and to update your contact details so we can stay in touch as the University approaches its 50th anniversary, please visit our website:

www.murdoch.edu.au/alumni

We also encourage you to join our alumni social media groups: www.facebook.com/murdochuniversityalumni

Congratulations on achieving a big milestone.

Welcome to the Murdoch alumni family!

Murdoch University Philanthropy

Murdoch University is committed to making our world a better place through outstanding research and educational opportunities. As one of our talented alumni, you too can have an impact when partnering with your university.

Our alumni are all at different stages of both their lives and careers, and contribute to their community in both big and small ways. As they mature, many choose to invest in our students and research through philanthropic support.

The Office of Alumni and Philanthropy works to link alumni, leading businesses, individuals, and community-minded groups with opportunities at Murdoch. Our Philanthropy team is here to help you explore opportunities, connect to the University, and realise joint aspirations through financial and in-kind donations.

They cultivate and steward key relationships by uniting individuals and organisations with Murdoch's fundraising priorities, to use our academic strength and resources to make the world a better place together.

We invite you to become involved in your community's future by reaching out to our office at any time for an exploratory conversation.

If you are ready to support now, you may also donate through our website at: www.murdoch.edu.au/giving-to-murdoch/give-now-to-murdoch or by contacting the Philanthropy Team via phone (+61) 8 9360 6211 or email philanthropy@murdoch.edu.au
